We were out and about this afternoon at our playground again.
We decided to go on a "playdate" and go the park. We ran around, played tag, hopped the logs, played in the swing, ate some ice cream and had a great time! I was worried that the girls would be too distracted playing and not want to sit still for Aunt Vanessa and Uncle Matt to get some pictures, but that wasn't the case. They were able to have a good time while we were there, but they spent a lot of time playing with each other and I was able to capture a few cute shots. Today we had some great pictures taken of the girls with their Dad. It was so fun to see how the girls were interacting and how they were able to play together. We had a great time as a family this weekend!

Thursday, July 18, 2015 We had a great time on the water today with the rest of the family. We went out to the lake for a little tubing, fishing, and swimming. It was such a fun time and I think that the girls loved it too! It was a beautiful day out and the kids enjoyed sitting outside and relaxing. It was a great way for them to spend time together and make memories! Natalie was a little excited to go to the swimming beach today. I couldn't believe how big she was getting and it was a little scary at first to just dive in and trust her to swim safely. She's so brave and I love that about her. We were so happy to see her happy and have fun! Monday, July 15, 2015 On our way home from a family vacation to Florida this weekend, my husband and I were having a little debate about what our new baby girl would look like. I am totally in love with the name Ariel but my husband doesn't like it. His argument is that it is "too Disney."

He is the one who came up with the name for our first child, so I feel a little hurt by his reaction to it. He thought that the name Ariel would give her the appearance of a mermaid, but he still loves it so much that he has chosen to call our new baby girl Ariel.
